Our Unique Proposition

While there are other operational risk content providers within the industry, majority of them only focus on providing content about operational risk losses. Such information can be useful for some operational risk activities such as capital modelling. However, due to their backward looking nature of such content, they are not suitable for forward looking operational risk activities such as risk assessments, scenario development and risk monitoring.

Within RiskSpotlight Portal, our main emphasis is on capturing news articles related to emerging trends and topics on operational risks. Based on our market analysis, we are the only content provider who provides daily updates on forward looking operational risk related news articles.
